SETTING YOURSELF A CLEAR DIRECTION THROUGH GOALS

It's 2020. Have you set yourself a realistic, measurable goals?

If you have never had this habit, now is a good time to start. You might think that: "Even if I had set goals they might not be realized." That is because you lack the motivation and drive to accomplish the goal that you have set out. You should match your goals with your entrepreneurial endeavours, put numbers to your goal, give it a mental picture, and imagine what achievement would look like to you when it comes full circle.

Goals are able to point and guide you towards a clear direction.

One of the objectives of RLEA is to ensure our partners are able to master the system and replicate it, building a stable network of consumers. 2020 is the year of strengthening the overall structure and operations. In 2019, we established a RLEA system committee led by a group of Royal Leaders to collaborate on optimisation and improvement efforts around the system's curriculum and learning materials, ensuring a more streamlined and effective approach to carry out replication initiatives.

To ensure we are able to provide assistance and support to all our partners in developing their network, RLEA will be training new speakers this year and creating more channels and opportunities for sharing.

This will help speakers build their on-stage experience and boost their leadership influence. For many leaders, being in the spotlight to share their stories is a blend of joy and jitters. Many leaders speak freely and openly when away from the limelight, however once they need to be on a stage, that is when their worries become apparent. However, if you have been through the TTT training and mastered the basics of being a speakers; together with more sharing opportunities, you will realise you have established a connection with the stage. Not only are you able to contribute to the partners, your leadership influence will also expand both on and off-stage.

THE PRINCIPAL OF RLEA
ALVIN HONG

Through the years, not only have I come across speakers who have contributed to the benefit of all partners, they were also able to cultivate and inspire new partners go on-stage and share. These are extremely encouraging as it does not only lead to more engaging and exciting sessions, it also provides a channel for new leaders to discover their potential.

As we continue to uphold our direction of being “people-oriented” and managing Return Legacy’s “Our Legacy Home” culture, RLEA will be introducing a new element in 2020: collaborating with professionals from different fields. This includes working closely with Master’s holder Ms. Leong Ting Ting, a registered and certified psychological counselor in Malaysia with 20 years of professional counselling experience, providing intellectual and spiritual boost to all partners. She will lead sharing sessions throughout the year across a wide variety of topics such as knowing yourself, interpersonal relationships, managing emotions and others. Some of you might think, how are these topics going to deliver results to the group? It is actually a lot more important to realise that life is often more than the sum of its parts, and commercial results are just one of many parts. Return Legacy does not only ensure partners to live healthy, beautiful, and financially liberating lives; the most important of it all is to support partners in discovering their true worth and value.

Because Return Legacy’s

Mission

To enrich people’s lives with value and enhance the quality of life.

Vision

A respected and socially-esteemed enterprise that benefits society.

Values

Responsibility, Commitment, Dedication.

Wishing all of you towards successfully completing your goals in 2020. Together we will continue winning and strive towards living a fulfilling life.
